A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE.

Secretary Bryan Predicts that President Wilson Will Receive a Vote of Confidence at the November Election.

Every true Democrat trusts that Mr. Bryan is right when he predicts that the Wilson Administration "is to receive in the Nation a vote of confidence."

This is the most important issue in the campaign, and such a vote of confidence in the President can come only through the election of a Democratic House of Representatives

It is unfortunate that a President placed in the position that Mr. Wilson has been placed by circumstances is obliged to make his appeal for public support through the medium of partisanship; but there is no other method known to American politics by which the people can signify their confidence and faith in a Chief Magistrate

Mr. Wilson has proved himself one of the great Presidents in American history, and his Administration has marked a new era in American politics. He is entitled to a Congress that is in avowed sympathy with his principles and policies of government, and we believe especially that he deserves the unyielding support of the American people in this great world crisis. That support can come only through the triumph of the Democratic party in the fall elections.

A Democratic defeat would be the defeat of President Wilson. It would be so interpreted throughout the world. Such a defeat would greatly weaken the President's influence abroad. It would likewise impair the power of the United States when the time comes for the restoration of peace. Issues of vital importance to civilization are in the President's hands, but these issues will be torn from his hands unless the American people prove that his ideals are their ideals and that his purposes are their purposes. A President of the United States who had been repudiated at the polls could not be expected to wield much influence in London and Berlin and Paris and St. Petersburg, Vienna and Tokio.

In this campaign President Wilson represents much more than the Democratic party. He represents democracy itself. He is to-day the most commanding representative of democracy among all the leaders of the nations, and the confidence that the American people express in him on election day will be a measure of the confidence they express in the efficacy of their own institutions.

The President is not playing politics with the grave questions with which he is dealing. The American people in turn should not play politics with the President.

Uphold President Wilson.

There are various ways of upholding President Wilson, and one of them is to contribute to the State campaign fund. The State Central Committee has prepared a handsome pocket piece, about the size of a silver dollar, to be given to everyone that contributes one dollar or more to the State fund. On one side of the medal is a profile of President Wilson, and above it the word "Uphold President Wilson," and on the reverse side are stamped these words:

"I have given $1 00 to the Pennsylvania Democratic Campaign fund For United States Senator, A. Mitchell Palmer; for Governor, Vance C. McCormick."

These pocket pieces may be secured from any member of the Centre County Finance Committee or from State Headquarters. G. L Goodhart is the local committeeman, and he will be pleased to furnish you with the handsome medals.

A vote for W. H. Patterson for State Senator will be a vote in support of President Wilson's administration and policies and a vote in support of U. S Senator Palmer and Governor Vance McCormick. He will be of aid to McCormick in carrying out the policies of his administration and McCormick will aid Senator Patterson in looking after the interests of the 34th Senatorial District composed of Centre and Clearfield counties.

The real and true advocates of County-wide Local Option will vote for Palmer, McCormick, Tobias, Patterson and David W. Miller. They all stand upon the same platform.

To uphold President Wilson you must vote for Vance C. McCormick for Governor. The Democratic National Administration has indorsed the State ticket.

If the Bigelow roads don't suit you, vote for McCormick. A Democratic Governor in Harrisburg will see that roads are built without a fifty million dollar loan.

To uphold President Wilson you must vote for Mr. Tobias for Congress.

DISTRICT S. S. CONVENTION.

Will be Held in Penns Creek Lutheran Church, Penn Hall, Friday of Next Week—Interesting Program.

The eighteenth semi-annual Sunday school convention of the eleventh district of Centre county will be held in Penns Creek Lutheran church, Penn Hall, Friday, October 30th. The district is composed of Potter and Gregg townships and Centre Hall borough. There will be two sessions—afternoon and evening. An interesting period on the program for the evening session will be that devoted to an address by Miss Martha Robison, who is superintendent of the rural school department of the State association.

The following is the program:

AFTERNOON SESSION—2 O'CLOCK.

Supt. Rural School Dept. State S. S. Asso.
1st—Echoes of State Convention.
2nd—Methods of Work for 1915.
Offering; Doxology; Benediction.

All schools are entitled to send delegates. May each Sabbath School worker in the district consider it a duty to help make the convention a helpful one. It is work for the Master. Pray for His blessing to rest upon it.

The officers of the Convention are C. E. Royer, President; C. W. Swartz, Vice President; Mrs. S. W. Smith, Secretary; T. M. Gramley, Treasurer.

Deaths of Centre Countians.

Thomas McClure died in the Altoona hospital Sunday evening after living three days with a terrible puncture wound of the right lung caused by a heavy piano falling on his chest while assisting to remove it from a wagon. He was born in Bellefonte thirty-eight years ago.

George W. Ellenberger died at the home of his son, Arthur S. Ellenberger, at Marango, Centre county, Saturday night, of Bright's disease.

LOCALS

Mrs. F. Potts Green and Mrs. Catharine Dinges, both of Bellefonte, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rossman, Friday.

Herbert Grove will move from the Goodling farm, west of Centre Hall, to the Murray and Ross farm at Earlystown, now tenanted by Daniel Bohn, next spring.

Mrs. Edward Brown and children spent a few days last week in Altoona as the guests of her brother, J. W. Keller. Mr. Brown went to Altoona Friday, returning with his family on Saturday.

G. L. Goodhart, representing the Grange fire insurance company, adjusted the loss sustained by A. O Myers near Martha, the fire having occurred the beginning of this month. The adjuster allowed Mr. Myers $784.50. The loss was on a barn, hay and a mower.

In a letter to the Reporter from Mrs. J. F. Brooks (nee Miss Sarah Breon) of Barberton, Ohio, she says among other things that labor conditions are becoming better in that city and that thousands of men are again being given employment. Mrs. Brooks recently recovered from a long period of sickness.

The wedding of Miss Sarah Cunningham Radcliffe, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. McCluney Radcliffe of Philadelphia, to Robert R. Mackay, will take place today (Thursday) in the Central North Board Street Presbyterian church, Philadelphia. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the Aldine hotel.

Miss Cara Hayes, a niece of J. T. Potter of Centre Hall, made a narrow escape with her life while bathing at Atlantic City, Sunday of last week. Miss Hayes is a trained nurse and together with Dr. E. Z. Holt, was caught in an offset and carried out to the open sea. Their predicament seemed hopeless until life guards plunged into the sea and saved them.

Palmer and Patterson have both been requested to withdraw as candidates by a small clique whose real motive is the support of a faction of the Republican party. They, however, have declined the request. Their election as United States Senator and State Senator is already assured. We want Democrates elected this year who will support the administration of President Woodrow Wilson.

The real and true advocates and supporters of County-wide Local Option laws will support and vote for Palmer, McCormick, Tobias, Patterson, and Assemblyman Miller. They are all running on the same platform and are self-pledged to Local Option.

To uphold President Wilson you must vote for Mr. Palmer for United States Senate.

MILLHEIM HORSE SALE.

Second Car Load of Western Horses Sold in Millheim Market at Very Fair Prices.

The second car load of western horses and colts were sold this fall in the Millheim horse market on Monday. The bidding was more rapid than at the first sale, and the average prices higher. This is due in part to the fact that at the latter sale there were less young animals, and that the matured animals were of a better grade and heavier in weight. L. F. Mayes was the auctioneer, and G. W. Stover clerk.

PURCHASERS AND PRICES.

T. E. Jodon, Bellefonte, 3—$199; $223 75; $223 75.

Simon Zimmerman, Lock Haven, 5—$185; $185; $250; $250; $270.

W. L. Ray, Reedsville, 1—$241.

Frank Grove, Bellefonte, 2—$192 50; $192 50.

M. Zimmerman, Lock Haven, 1—$255.

Rufus Hough, Madisonburg, 2—$162; $154.

A. Cummings, Rebersburg, 1—$141

W. A. McNitt, Reedsville, 2—$177; $165

R. E. Stover, Millheim, 1—$181.

Ed. Weiser, Millheim, 1—$190.

Joe Hayes, Lamar, 2—$176; $173

Adam Winters, Rebersburg, 2—$220; $220

Jonathan Krape, Aaronsburg, 1—$220

George Stone, Boalsburg, 1—$158.

H. G. Stover, Millheim, 1—$141.

A Pleasant Surprise Party.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Searson at Linden Hall was the scene of a very pleasant surprise party, Saturday night, given in honor of Mrs. Searson's birthday anniversary. The plans which led to the success of the undertaking were conceived and carried out by Mrs. Searson's sister, Mrs. William Harshbarger of Bellefonte. An auto trip was arranged for Mrs. Searson which kept her from home until all her friends were assembled in the parlor. Upon return she was greeted in a manner that soon revealed to her the plot that had been laid. A most enjoyable evening was spent and refreshments served in abundance. Mr. Searson presented his wife with a gold watch and chain. Those present were: James Searson, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. James Harshbarger and two sons, F. W. Glasgow, Anna Glasgow, Albert Carper, Ray Sharer, Mr. and Mrs. James Irvin, Mrs. J. W. Keller, Mrs. J. W. Swabb, Mrs. Anna Miller, Chas. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs Jacob Sharer and son, Mr. and Mrs. John Carper, Mr. and Mrs David Glasgow and family, Mrs. John Frazier, Mrs. David Glasgow, Mr. and Mrs. Arber Cummings, Mrs. Alfred Beezer, Mellie Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Harshbarger, Mrs. J. L. Tressler, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cummings and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Colyer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Messimer and daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Brown, Wm. Hoy, Alice Kline, Bessie Grove, Bertha Harshbarger, Marion Harshbarger, Mabel Sharer, Helen Colyer, Verna Cummings, Grace Brown, Mrs. Wes Sharer and sons, Larue Ishler, Irene Reifsnyder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glasgo.

Tusseyville

Verna and Sarah Frantz spent Saturday with their cousin, Blanche McClellan.

Mrs. William Bitner has been on the sick list the past week, but is some better at this writing.

Mrs. George Spangler of Centre Hall is visiting for two weeks among relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horner of Mill Hall visited among relatives from Tuesday until Monday.

Sunday afternoon, Foreign Missionary day was observed in the Evangelical church, conducted by Rev. Foss.

Mr. and Mrs. Domer Ishler moved to Washington, D. C., last Friday, where they will make their future home.

W. J. Smith and Mrs. F. O Bairfoot of Centre Hall spent last Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary Ishler. They were accompanied by Jennie Bodtorf, who had been visiting at Lemont and Bellefonte the past two weeks.

PENN HALL.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Shook autoed to Bellefonte on Sunday.

Miss Kate Pennington is at present visiting her sister, Mrs. George Kline.

Those on the sick list are Mr. and Mrs R. B. Bartges and Russell Condo.

Miss Irma Shook was operated on for appendicitis and is getting along nicely.

Misses Mary and Jennie Bartges came home from West Chester Normal to take care of their sick parents.

Rev. and Mrs. Geesey took supper at the H. B. Herring home, Sunday evening.

Hunting season opened on Thursday and some of our young sports took advantage of it and reported game not plentiful.

Sacrifice Merchandise Sale.

The undersigned has purchased the entire stock of the Wieland store at Linden Hall, and will sell the same at a great sacrifice. Nothing will be removed, everything must be sold. Sale will begin Friday, October 23rd, and will continue for ten days.

THE GLAZIER JUBILEE SINGERS.

First Attraction in the Centre Hall Lecture Course, Thursday, October 29th.

The Glazier Jubilee Singers, a colored troup composed of three gentlemen and two ladies, will open the Centre Hall lecture course in Grange Arcadia, Thursday of next week, October 29th.

This quintette of colored talent have an unparalleled record, having filled 660 engagements in two years. They are invariably the leading attraction wherever they appear at Chautauquas and in courses. Although members of the Glazier Jubilee Singers have cultivated voices, they sing only the old time favorite Negro melodies, camp-meeting and cabin songs as sung on the plantations of the South during slavery days. They are recognized as the world's greatest and best colored singers. To miss hearing them will give cause for later regret.

The price of admission to those not holding course tickets will be thirty-five cents, and five cents extra for reserved seats. Children under fifteen years of age, fifteen cents.

"A Happy Man at Last."

The many friends of our former beloved townsman, William Love Runkle, now a resident of Knoxville Borough, Pittsburg, will be pleased to learn of the arrival of a beautiful bouncing ten pound baby boy at his home Thursday morning, October 15. He was the recipient of congratulations from his many business associates and when interrogated about his son's future, he replied "That he thought he would make a ball player out of him, and that his name would be William Doak Runkle."

Box Social on Hallowe'en.

The young people connected with Progress Grange will hold a box social in Grange hall on Hallowe'en, October 31st, to which all their friends are invited. There will be ice cream and cake, and a general good time for all who attend.

LOCALS

Miss Bessie Emerick is employed as a domestic in the home of Miss Annie Bible.

Rev. R. R Jones left for Allentown on Monday to attend the sessions of the Eastern Synod of the Reformed church which continues until Saturday.

William Durst arrived in Centre Hall from Beloit, Wisconsin, last week, and will spend a short time at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harry Harper.

The Centre county commissioners paid out during the month of September, 1914, bounties on 205 weasles, 6 grey foxes, 30 hawks, 15 owls and 1 wild cat, amounting to $448.50.

Messrs. V. A. Auman, J. W. Whiteman, Wm. Keller, and Joseph Lutz attended installation of officers of Spring Mills lodge, I. O. O. F., Friday evening, making the trip in Mr. Keller's car.

Mrs. L. W. S. Person will be at the residence of Mrs. M. E. Strohm, in Centre Hall, October 22nd to 26th, inclusive, with a complete line of the latest New York styles in ladies' and children's millinery.

The furniture store of F. V. Goodhart is undergoing some improvements this week. Monday morning the carpenters commenced tearing off the old weather boarding and replaced it with new material.

Mrs. L. O Packer attended the funeral of her uncle, Hiram Catherman, in Hartleton, Monday. Mr. Catherman died Wednesday of last week, after an illness with tuberculosis, at the age of sixty-five years. Funeral services were held Monday at ten o'clock and were private. Merchant C. F. Emery and Dr. H. F. Bitner, who are distantly related, also attended the funeral.

W. H. Patterson of Clearfield, Democratic candidate for State Senator, passed through Penns Valley Thursday on his last trip through this section of the county before election. While in Centre Hall he paid his respects to this office and also met a number of voters From here he went to Spring Mills and Millheim. Mr. Patterson is more than pleased with the political outlook and especially with conditions as they exist in his home county.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moyer and son Clyde of Darragh, in the Pittsburgh district, arrived in Centre Hall on Saturday, and for several weeks will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Moyer, and Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Condo, parents of Mrs. Moyer. Mr. Moyer is employed by the Keystone Coal and Coke company, and has been with them for almost twelve years. He is in fine physical condition, but feels that he has earned a vacation although not in need of it from a physical standpoint.

Helping the War Orphans.

The Christmas ship which will sail from New York harbor on November 10th for the countries of Europe which are now engaged in the great death struggle, will carry a neat little donation contributed by the good people of Centre Hall for the thousands and thousands of orphans who have been reduced to a state of poverty and suffering. It was through the efforts of Mrs. John G. King that Centre Hall was given an opportunity to display its charitableness to this worthy cause, and a thorough canvass of the town resulted in a collection of underclothing, stockings, sweaters, caps, suits, dresses, and money, which was given spontaneously and with great generosity. The box containing the gifts will be shipped to Philadelphia today (Thursday) and there it will be taken in charge by the Child Federation and subsequently shipped with other boxes to New York.

Only One Hunter Kills Squirrel Limit.

Thursday morning was not a favorable one for the opening of the squirrel season, a rain falling a few hours after daylight driving the squirrels into the trees. One hunter, however, was successful in killing the limit of squirrels. He was Emmett Brooks, who, by the way, always gives a good account of himself when in quest of game. Before nine o'clock he had killed six grey squirrels and on the following day he bagged four. Robert Bloom killed four the first day and Archie Moyer brought down three with a .32 calibre rifle, a feat difficult at any time and especially at this time of year when the trees still bear a heavy foliage. Quite a few local hunters bagged two squirrels, and a greater number returned with empty game bags. No pheasants were reported killed the first few days of the season.

I. O. O. F. Installation at Spring Mills.

Friday night T. M. Gramley, D. P. G. M., installed the following officers in Spring Mills lodge, No 597, I. O. O. F.: J. D. Wagner, P. G.; S. L. Condo, N. G; D. F. P. Heckmon, V. G.; T. M. Gramley, Fin. Sec.; Wm. H. Haney, Rec. Sec.; Dr. H. S. Braucht, Treas.; Reuben Breon, Warden; W. A. Neese, Conductor; G. C. Gentzel, Chaplain; Clayton Stover, I. G.; Blain Bitner, O. G.; B. F. Kennelly, R. S. to N. G.; R. E. Sweetwood, L. S. to N. G.; C. G. Decker, R. S. S.; Wm. W. Smith, L. S. S.; R. J. Finkle, R. S. to V. G.; W. O Ripka, L. S. to V. G.; T. M. Gramley, Rep. to Grand Lodge; R. F. Finkle, Rep. to Sunbury Orphanage.

Centre Co. Banquet in Philadelphia.

Centre countians of Philadelphia will hold their next annual banquet on Thursday, January 28th, 1915. The officers and directors of the association met Friday afternoon in the office of William S. Furst, Esq, and decided to have the attractions of the evening consist of dinner, speeches, readings, vocal and instrumental music, and dancing.

Senator Hall is Very Ill.

Little hope is entertained for the recovery of State Senator James Knox P. Hall, who is in a critical condition at the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio.

Since an operation, which was performed Wednesday morning of last week, Senator Hall has been sinking slowly and late reports from his bedside say that he is little improved. His term as State Senator will expire in December.

W. H. Patterson, candidate for State Senator upon the Democratic ticket spent last week among the voters of Centre county. He is meeting with much encouragement. The voters of Centre county, irrespective of party affiliations, are pledging him their support. They want a man in the State Senate who is competent to, and who will, look after the interests of the 34th Senatorial District of the State composed of Centre and Clearfield counties.

If you want another scandal equal to that of the State capitol cleaned up, vote for Mr. McCormick for Governor. It was his money that made it possible for Mr. Berry to expose the capitol scandal, and now another scandal will be exposed if he is elected. Vote for McCormick and help rid the State of another bunch of grafters.

Vance McCormick will be elected Governor of Pennsylvania at the coming general election. He will want the support of true and active Democrats in the Senate and not a Republican who will oppose his policies; therefore vote for W. H. Patterson, who can be relied upon to give Mr. McCormick loyal and efficient support.

Uphold President Wilson.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS

George E. Ishler is suffering with blood poisoning in his right hand.

D. A. Boozer attended the harness show in Altoona Thursday of last week.

A new furnace will be put in the Reformed church at Aaronsburg in the near future.

Jesse Templeton of Altoona is the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. Catharine Horner.

Ira Gramley of Millheim fell from an apple tree one day last week and broke several ribs.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ripka and their children spent Sunday in Bellefonte with relatives and friends.

Thomas A. Hosterman of Penn township was appointed a justice of the peace by the Governor Tener Thursday of last week.

Fred Mensch, who was recently in the employ of the P. R. R., has quit that position to assist his brother, Harry in the store business in Millheim.

Robert Meyer, who is employed by the State-Centre Electric Co. at State College, spent Sunday at the home of his parents, Prof. and Mrs. P. H. Meyer.

Mr. and Mrs. James Smetzler left on Monday for Bellevue, Ohio, where they will spend several weeks visiting at the home of Mr. Smetzler's brother, David Smetzler.

Jacob Long of Madisonburg, aged seventy-six years, while picking apples from a tree recently, fell and broke his right hip. Dr. G. S. Frank of Millheim reduced the fracture.

The members of the Reformed church in Lewisburg, the other Sunday, pledged over $3 000 to pay the remaining debt of $2500 on the church, Rev. R. L. Gerhart, D. D., pastor.

The Glazier Jubilee Singers will furnish one of the best entertainments a Centre Hall audience will have an opportunity to enjoy. The negro camp-meeting melodies alone will be worth the price of admission.

"Under the Palms," the Biblical musical production, was rendered by a chorus of one hundred and eighty voices in the Lutheran church in Lewisburg with such pleasing effect that the program was repeated on the following evening.

One of the best truckers in this section is M. M. Condo, who is now looking forward to harvesting two thousand cabbages planted on his small truck farm. Mr. Condo has grown enormous crops of onions, tomatoes and many other vegetables during the past season.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Welsch and little daughter spent a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Crawford. On Monday they returned to their home in Wayne county, New York. Mr. Welsch had been in charge of the evaporating plant which suspended operations Saturday.

A belated announcement, but one that will be read with interest nevertheless, is that Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Murray of Chicago, Illinois, are the proud parents of a baby daughter that came to their home on the 30th ult. It is the second child in the family and is known by the name of Lois Rebecca Murray.

Mrs. Mary Ross, who had been spending the greater part of the past year with her daughter, Mrs. Lettie Goodhart, suffered for the past week or more with indigestion and a few days ago was removed to the home of her other daughter, Mrs. Sarah Bushman, in Centre Hall. Mrs. Ross is seventy-three years of age and has always enjoyed good health.

Mrs. W. M. Furey of Bellefonte spent a few days beginning of this week at the home of her sister, Mrs. John G. King. While here Mrs. Furey assisted Mrs. King in soliciting for the war orphans and while Mrs. Furey did similar work in Bellefonte under the direction of the W. C. T. U., she stated that the people of Centre Hall gave toward this cause with greater generosity than she observed elsewhere.

The local evaporating plant suspended operations Friday owing to the overstocked condition of the market in this product. As is generally known, Germany was the greatest buyer of Uncle Sam's evaporated apples, but she is not consuming any now and there is no telling how long it will be until she gives us an order. The evaporating plant at Coburn ceased operations Saturday. Hand-picked apples are also hard to dispose of because of the immense crop this fall, not only in Pennsylvania but also in New York, which state produces a quality and quantity of apples second to none.

BOTH BATTLE LINES REACH SEA NO POSSIBILITY OF OUTFLANKING TORPEDO SIXTH BRITISH CRUISER

Allies Extend Their Lines to Coast and Prevent Germans From Entering French Ports

Operation Stops Turning Movement by Either Army. Victory in Campaign Will Go to Army That First Masses Force Strong Enough to Break Through Front

KAISER SENDING STRONG COLUMNS TO REINFORCE HIS INTRENCHED TROOPS

London.—The German attempt to prevent the Allies in northern France from extending their lines to the coast failed and a heavy Anglo-French force stretching 23 miles, from Ypres, Belgium, to the North Sea at a point about half way between Dunkirk and Ostend barred the advance of the Kaiser's army from the Belgian resort town.

The Kaiser is rushing forward 200,000 or 300,000 fresh troops to the Belgian coast. The Allies are strengthening their left as rapidly as possible.

In the meantime, Gen. von Kluck's men are not idle and the Anglo-French left in the Lille-Ypres region is kept busy holding its own. The French official reports tell of the capture of Leventie, a railroad town eight miles northwest of Bethune.

The see-saw movement of the contending troops in the North is well illustrated by the following news from Bordeaux, to the French Embassy at London: "The Germans have advanced from Audenarde toward Courtrai. The enemy occupy a line of defense Meroin-Armentieres-Givenchy. To the west of La Basse he is in contact with our troops between that locality and Arras. A violent combat took place northwest of Lens to Vermelles, which resulted in our favor. We have taken Hannescamps, southwest of Arras."

In the Meuse region, the French report the repulse of a German attack near Malancourt, 12 miles north of Verdun. There was little action along the center.

In an official statement issued by the German General Staff it was stated that at no point had the French succeeded in making any important advances: Where the French have gained ground was said to be at points where for strategical reasons the Germans had withdrawn.

Zeebrugge has been entered by the Germans. The German flag has been hoisted on the whole Dutch frontier. Zeebrugge is on the coast, 16½ miles northeast of Ostend on the steam tramway that runs along the coast. It is the new port of Bruges, connected by a ship canal with Bruges, already in German hands.

The Allies line in Belgium now reaches from Ypres to the North Sea, thus barring German progress toward Dunkirk and Calais.

In Lorraine a French army is almost within shot of Metz, an offensive movement which might result in cutting off the retreat of the German Crown Prince.

The Government reports, as well as despatches to the newspapers, show that the Allies have gone forward in northern France and in southwestern Belgium, while the Germans have continued an unopposed advance to Ostend.

The German right wing and the Allied left wing now rest upon the seacoast. The Allied line now runs from Nieuport through Dixmude to Ypres, while Gen. Joffre is steadily pressing back the Germans in the region of Lille.

With both the belligerent lines reaching to the sea there now can be no attempts at outflanking by either army. To win success one or the other of the opponents must break through the line, and the army having the greatest number of men and the ability to move them to a chosen point seemingly has the better chance to succeed.

The Germans, it is believed here, are certain to try to make a breach in the Allies' line, but just where is known only to themselves and to the French and British commanders, who are receiving reports from their aerial scouts of any movement in strength.

It is believed, however, that the Germans are striking for the outer railway system, now in French hands, which runs from Paris through Amiens and Arras to Hazebrouck Junction, and thence to Calais and the coast.

Thus far, according to the French reports, the Allies have repulsed every attempt of the Germans to achieve this object, and now have them pressed well back from the threatened railway.

APPREHENSION IN FRANCE.

Bordeaux.—The war situation on northern frontier of France is viewed with increased apprehension in well informed circles.

It is feared that the Germans will extend their sweep of the north coast to Dunkirk and even to Calais, opposite Dover, England.

With its battle line from the German frontier to the English Channel thus shortened, the German front will gain in weight.

As the French army has been unequal to the task of turning the Germans' left flank when thinly extended, it is now feared that the entire German line will advance successfully on Paris.

THE RUSSO-GERMAN CAMPAIGN.

The Hague.—The main armies of the contending forces, the Russians on one side and the Austrians and Germans on the other, are in close touch over an immense front which evidently will gradually extend from the Baltic to the Carpathians. In spite of the claims of victory here and defeat there by one side or the other, there is reason to believe that, generally speaking, the fighting so far has been confined to cavalry engagements, and that a general action has not yet begun.

Although the Germans were reported to have been driven back 30 miles from Warsaw, a later report from Petrograd tells of desperate fighting but eight miles from the Polish capital. Nevertheless, the Russians War Office insists the German advance has been checked. The Russians claim to have cut the German center and to have taken 10,000 prisoners, with several cannon.

WARRIORS FEAR WOLVES.

Animals, Driven From Mountains by Snow, Rival Enemy.

Cettinje.—A close watch at night is necessary at the military camps, not only because of the fear of the enemy, but on account of the dread of wolves, which when the first snow covered the mountain tops began to descend and wander in rapacious bands, attacking the living, if they cannot find dead.

7 SHIPS, 2,186 MEN, LOST BY GREAT BRITAIN

The German policy of crippling the British navy by submarine attacks and floating mines while keeping the German dreadnoughts under the guns of Kiel and Helgoland has cost the British six useful cruisers and one torpedo gunboat, with a loss of 2,186 men.

By submarine raids in the North Sea Germans sank the following:

The scout cruiser Pathfinder, with 246 men, on September 5.

The armored cruisers Cressy, Hogue and Aboukir on September 22, with 1,400 men.

The scout cruiser Hawke on October 15, with 387 men.

German mines in the North Sea destroyed the light cruiser Amphion, with 131 men, on August 6 and the torpedo gunboat Speedy on September 3, with 22 men.

The advantage in the naval struggle is distinctly with the Germans, although the British have destroyed or wrecked four German cruisers, two torpedo boat destroyers, one torpedo boat, three submarines and eight merchant ships armed as commerce destroyers.

British Cruiser Hawke Sunk by Germans

London.—The British cruiser Hawke has been sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine. Out of a crew of 400 50 were saved. News of the disaster is officially confirmed.

The Hawke was scouting in the North Sea at the time. She was steaming along when she was struck almost amidships by the torpedo and almost torn to pieces.

The Admiralty gave this announcement:

His majesty's ship Theseus, Capt. Hugh Edwards, was attacked by a submarine in the northern waters of the North Sea but was missed. His majesty's ship Hawke, Capt. M. P. Williams, was attacked about the same time and sunk.

The following officers, with forty-nine men of the crew, have been landed at Aberdeen from a trawler. Boatswain Sydney Austin, Gunner James Dennis and Acting Gunner Harry Evitt. The remaining officers and men are missing.

The Hawke was 7,350 tons displacement, 360 feet long, 60 feet beam, and drew 23 feet of water. She was a sister ship of the Edgar, Endymion, Grafton, Theseus and Gibraltar, and was launched in 1891.

Her armament consisted of two 9.2-inch guns, ten 6-inch guns, twelve six-pounds, five three-pounders, two machine guns and two torpedo tubes. Her complement was 544 men.

The Hawke was commanded by Capt. P. E. T. Wiliams. Among her officers were Commander Bernard A. Pratt-Barlow and Lieut.-Commander Robert R. Rosoman.

The Hawke collided with the liner Olympic September 20, 1911, near Osborne bay, on the north side of the Isle of Wight. She sustained serious damage.

The loss of the Hawke makes a total of six British cruisers destroyed by Germany in the North Sea since the beginning of the war.

CANADIAN TROOPS LANDED.

Ottawa, Ont.—Announcement that the fleet of 32 transport steamers carrying the Canadian expeditionary force of 33,000 reached England and are disembarking the troops at Plymouth, has been cabled to Premier Sir Robert Borden by George E. Perley, a member of the Administration, now in Great Britain.

FINAL WAR BULLETINS

The British Admiralty announced that the cruiser Hawke was sunk in the North Sea by a German submarine Thursday. The loss of life is said to be about 327 officers and men. A sister ship, the cruiser Theseus, made its escape.

A Berlin official report states that Ostend was taken by the German Army. News dispatches from France say that the city was not bombarded, as their occupation was not hindered.

Alsace continues the scene of daily struggles for the possession of points of vantage, the result of which it is difficult to ascertain, as fortunes vary so rapidly. Towns are taken and retaken repeately.

Thousands who fled Ostend in rowboats and other small craft arrived at Dover and cities along the French coast without food for thirty-six hours.

Continued advances of the Allied forces near the Franco-Belgian frontier are reported by the French War Office bulletins. Estaires has been retaken from the Germans. Gains at many points along the intrenched lines from Lens and Arras to Verdun and St. Mihiel are also claimed.

It is asserted that from six to eight German army corps are operating on the East Prussian frontier, where Berlin reports that the fighting continues favorable to the Germans.

Berlin reports that on the battle line in Poland an advance of eight Russian army corps was repulsed with heavy loss.

Rome hears that fire in the arsenal at Triest has destroyed an Austrian dreadnought and damaged other craft.

London conceded that the Germans controlled channel ports in Belgium, but it was said they would meet strong resistance by the Allies if an attempt was made to extend the invaders' right wing to the French coast.

The main Belgian Army, according to the official proclamation issued by the Ministry, is in touch with the allied forces, close to the northern frontier.

The German Army Headquarters report stated that there is nothing new in the situation in France. It dealt mainly with the big battle in Russian Poland.

BATTLE FRONT HAS CHANGED ENTIRELY

LONDON.—It seems as if the struggle has reached such a complicated stage that even the most highly organized general staff is incapable of exercising general control over the movements of any particular group of the armies, and in various quarters of the field the generals are acting more or less independently.

The principal fact is that both armies have executed a most complete change of front since the battle of the Marne. They are now holding vastly more extended lines, running almost north and south. The Allies' line stretches from Ghent, or its environs, to Soissons. For the past ten days the Germans have concentrated their main efforts on breaking through the centre of the Allied line.

Their object has been to reach Amiens and thus control the railroads running north.

As a whole, the situation of the Allies daily becomes more favorable. Everywhere they have held their own, and in several places have gained a town.

Naval Expert Warns Great Britain to Resist Invasion of Germans

London.—The naval correspondent of the London Times, in an article in which he is foreshadowing a German invasion of England, says:

Now that the war is reaching the climax of its violence we must anticipate that all the living forces of Germany will be thrown into the conflict and that the Germany navy no longer will remain inert.

The length of our coasts, the absence of our best troops over sea, the want of a national army, which is still only in the forming; the submarine menace, which keeps our grand fleet often far from the ultimately decisive point; Zeppelins, mines and other conditions, more or less novel, throw upon Sir John Jellicoe a burden of responsibility which no one must underrate.

With an intact navy and initiative much can be done, and it probably is hoped that while the German navy engages ours the transports, escorted by the older war ships, may slip across and complete a landing under the protection of mines, submarines and vessels sunk in the fairway.

There is ample shipping in German ports for the embarcation of a quarter of a million men or more, and from the evidence of calmness with which the German generals sacrifice life to attain their objects we can be sure that a loss of 50,000 men in transit would be considered a cheap price to pay for throwing the remainder ashore.

Are there troops to spare? Germany has three million men on her two frontiers, but she has four million men in her active army, reserve and Landwehr, besides a million and three-quarters more in the Landsturm and Ersatz reserve. She may have now a million recruits of the new contingent at depots. There are reports that over a million men who have escaped service in the past have volunteered. Even if we deduct from these figures half a million men for losses in the field by wounds and illness it will take a great deal to convince us that the number of troops needed for an invasion of England cannot be found.

GERMAN SUBMARINES TO CHANNEL BY RAIL?

LONDON.—There is a widespread circulated rumor in London that the Germans expect to transport by rail to places on the Belgian and French coasts a number of submarines, with which to attack the British fleet. The entire feasibility of transporting submarines overland is the contention of a well-known American engineer here who has had much to do with the study of submarine mines. He said:

"It would be possible to transport submarines by rail from Germany to the Belgian or French coasts once the railroad lines were secured, but after reaching the coast then would come the problem of escaping the British war vessels or mine fields."

The rumors are that the Germans may try to send the submarines from near the mouth of the Scheldt.

Germans Declared To Have Been Repulsed In Attempts To Cross River.

The French are reported to have reoccupied Armentieres, an important railway center in Belgium, and to have repulsed a German attempt to cross the River Ysr.

The Allies claim to have made an advance north of the La Basse Canal and between Arras and the Oise.

The German official report announces the capture of immense quantities of war material at Bruges and Ostend.

An airship which appeared over Warsaw created something of a panic there.

It is proposed to ask the government in the British Parliament a number of pointed questions suggestive of inefficiency in the War Department.

According to reports submitted by Lord Kitchener, the British losses in killed, wounded and missing between September 12 and October 8 total 561 officers and 12,980 men.

Crown Princess Cecilia has gone to Danzig to bestow iron crosses on the crew of the German submarine that sank the Russian cruiser Pallada.

German shells have completely destroyed the country home of President Poincaire at Sampigne-sur-Meuse.

The Germans are reported to have levied a war tax of $1,000,000 on Ostend.

The Russians, Austrians and Servians, according to their respective official reports, have each inflicted losses on their enemy.

REVENGE FOR THE HAWKE.

Light Warship Undaunted Assisted By Four Destroyers.

London.—The British Navy lost none killed and only one officer and four men wounded in the action off the Dutch coast Saturday, when the British protected cruiser Undaunted and four destroyers sent four German destroyers to the bottom of the North Sea. The crews of the German craft, numbering probably 400, all perished, with the exception of 31, who are now being sent to a British port as prisoners of war. This was officially announced by the war press bureau in a statement issued shortly after midnight. It was stated that the British destroyers were slightly damaged by the fire of their German antagonists.

Antwerp Official Writes Of Demands Of Germans.

London.—A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam quotes Councilor Langnor, of Antwerp, as describing the situation in that city as follows: "Antwerp now has a garrison of 17,000 marines and 200 officers, commanded by an admiral. As a war contribution the Germans demanded 300 hundredweight of potatoes daily, 2,000 bottles of wine, bread for the whole garrison, 85,000 cigars, 8,500 kilograms of meat and pay for the officers and soldiers, estimated at $10,000 daily."

Snow Forces Them From Mountains To Attack Men.

Rome.—A dispatch from Cettinje says: "A close watch at night is necessary at the military camps not only because of the fear of the enemy, but on account of the dread of wolves, which, when the first snow covered the mountain tops, began to descend and wander in rapacious bands, attacking the living if they cannot find dead."

VON KLUCK REPORTED OUT.

Wounded Prisoners Declare That He Has Been Supplanted.

London.—According to wounded German officers who are prisoners in a hospital in England, it is said, Gen. Sixt von Arnim has succeeded General von Kluck in command of the right wing of the German Army in France. It is asserted that this change was made two days after the battle of Marne.

MINES IN THE SCHELDT.

Germans, the Dutch Hear, Have Placed Them There.

Amsterdam.—The Germans, according to the Handelsblad, have laid mines in the River Scheldt near Antwerp. Skippers bound for Antwerp have been required to ask instructions how to proceed at Tansweert, a port in the estuary of the Scheldt.

COLONEL GREY CAPTURED.

Brother Of English Minister Of Foreign Affairs Held.

Berlin.—Colonel Grey, a brother of the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs, was made prisoner when the aeroplane on which he was acting as observer was brought down by a well-directed shot near Peronne, France. His aviator also was captured.

The Ambition of Mark Truitt

By HENRY RUSSELL MILLER

Author of "THE MAN HIGHER UP," "HIS RISE TO POWER," Etc.

(Copyright, 1913, by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

SYNOPSIS.

Mark Truitt, encouraged by his sweetheart, Unity Martin, leaves Bethel, his native town, to seek his fortune. Simon Truitt tells Mark that it long has been his dream to see a steel plant at Bethel and asks the son to return and build one if he ever gets rich. Mark applies to Thomas Henley, head of the Quinby Iron works, for a job and is sent to the construction gang. His success in that work wins him a place as helper to Roman Andzrejzski, open-hearth furnaceman. He becomes a boarder in Roman's home and assists Piotr, Roman's son, in his studies. Kazia, an adopted daughter, shows her gratitude in such a manner as to arouse Mark's interest in her. Heavy work in the intense heat of the furnace causes Mark to collapse and Kazia cares for him. Later Roman also succumbs and Mark gets his job. Roman resents this and tells Mark to find another boarding place. Five years elapse during which Mark has advanced to the foremanship, while his labor-saving devices have made him invaluable to the company. In the meantime Kazia has married one Jim Whiting. Mark meets with an accident which dooms him to be a cripple for life. He returns to Bethel intending to stay there. He finds Unity about to marry another man and wins her back. Unity urges him to return to his work in the city. Mark rises rapidly to wealth and power in the steel business, but the social ambitions of his wife make their married life unhappy. The big steel interests are secretly anxious to get hold of stock in the Iroquois Iron company, supposed to be worthless. Timothy Woodhouse seeks financial assistance from Mark and the latter buys Woodhouse's Iroquois stock at a small figure. Henley forces Quinby to let Mark have stock in the Quinby company, through a threat that if he does not he will lose both of them.

CHAPTER XV—Continued.

It was the less satisfying because he foresaw the end of a chapter. He had spent himself: in body—he was no longer capable of long intense application, he had fallen back upon the invalid's last resort, drugs; in mind—the creative faculty seemed dead, that very morning a young man in the mills had announced an important invention that was to have been Truitt's magnum opus and upon which his sterile brain had labored in vain; in soul—he could no longer dream. And for reward he had—the dry fact of a triumph he could not sense and the prospect of an empty, useless, discontented future.

He was a critic, you see; but not of himself. The world was out of joint.

Passers-by were diverted from their own cares by the sight of a well-dressed man stamping his cane on the pavement and muttering aloud: "An evil fate pursues me. Other men do as I do, desire as I desire and find content. Why can't I be contented—and happy?"

A thousand faces streamed past him, unrecognized and unrecognizing. Then, at a corner where two currents dammed each other, appeared one that seemed oddly familiar. It was of an undistinguished homeliness, pasty pale, morose, matching well the general shabbiness of its owner. At first Mark, confused by the dirty brown beard, did not recognize him.

The man had no doubts. At sight of Mark an evil glitter sprang into the sullen eyes.

"You!"

By the hate that had lived through fifteen years Mark placed him.

"Piotr Andzrejzski!"

"Peter Anderson," the man corrected him.

"That's a good American name. I'd forgotten you had a preference." Mark smiled and held out a friendly hand. "How are you, Peter Anderson?"

The hand was ignored. When Peter Anderson sneered, his homeliness became almost grotesque.

"Since you're so interested, I manage to keep alive."

"How do you manage it?"

"I'm a compositor on the Outcry—when there's any money for an issue."

"The Outcry?"

"You'll hear of it yet. It's the paper of our Cause."

Mark knew of but one cause that employed the capital. "Socialism, I suppose." He smiled indulgently. "I hope it's in funds sufficiently often."

"I look it, don't I?"

The answer was so obvious that Mark avoided it. "How," he asked hastily, "is Roman?"

"He breathes and sleeps and eats. But he's dead."

"Is that a Socialist parable? I'm not a Socialist, so you'll have to explain."

"His mind's gone. It began to go soon after you stole his job. But probably you've forgotten that, too."

"I have no recollection," said Mark coldly, "of any such occurrence." With a curt nod, he passed on.

He had gone but a few steps when he halted and looked back. Peter, unmindful of elbowing pedestrians, was still at the corner, glaring at him.

Impulsively he turned and retraced his steps.

"See here, Piotr," he said. "Let us not use hard names. There are a good many things we'd never agree on. But we can agree on this—you're hard up. I've been luckier than you. What can I do to help you?"

Piotr's lips formed a surly, "Nothing." But the refusal did not fall. A look of transparent craft displaced malevolence.

"Do you mean that?" he asked suspiciously.

"I'm not in the habit—"

"I don't care about your habits," Piotr interrupted ungraciously. "If you want to do something, you can lend me a hundred dollars."

"Lend," evidently, was a euphemism.

"What will you do—still, that's your business. Of course, I will. I wish you'd asked me something harder. Come along to the bank."

The bank was a few blocks away. Mark improved the time by asking the details of Roman's circumstances. Piotr, sullenness not lifted by the prospect of money, answered shortly. It was a pitiable story of descent—of the gradual dissipation of the savings of Roman's active years and the swift failure, through idleness and too much alcohol, of his mental powers, leaving him and Hanka dependent upon Piotr's scanty and uncertain earnings.

"Where," Mark asked, as they entered the bank, "do you live now?"

"Rose Alley."

"Rose Alley!" Mark stopped short. "My God!"

"What does your sort know of it?"

"Quite enough. Come along."

A few minutes later they were in the street again, Piotr the richer by the sum he had asked.

They stood facing each other—the strong man who had conquered and the inefficient, one of life's guerrillas, who had just taken of the strong man's largess. But the inefficient was not grateful; a hundred dollars could not conquer his hatred.

"I s'pose," he sneered, "you want me to thank you?"

"No. If you need more, come to me. And, see here, Piotr, I want you to get Roman and your mother away from Rose Alley."

"You want—!" The money in his pocket, Piotr threw craft to the winds. "What have you to do with us? Do you s'pose we'd let you help us?"

"But you took—"

Piotr chuckled—a chuckle of triumphant malice. "Did you think it was for us?" The chuckle grew into a laugh, as though he pondered some mammoth jest. "You—you—have just paid for the next issue of the Outcry!"

He wheeled and went haltingly away. Mark watched him until he turned a corner.

"Poor devil!" Mark shook his head pityingly. "He's mad."

It was not Mark's habit to waste precious hours wandering the crowded city streets in introspective meditation. He now went to the appointment with his lawyer to keep which he had left Henley.

It was a long and tedious consultation, having to do with a big real estate deal in which Truitt had shown his customary shrewdness. He displayed little interest. More than once Shirley, the lawyer, had to recall his straying attention. Shirley was astonished at this; his client was notable for his concentration on the matter in hand. He would have been even more deeply astonished, could he have looked upon the picture that lured away Mark's thoughts. But then, for

She Looked at Him Steadily, Showing No Surprise.

Shirley, the name of Rose Alley would have raised to life no dead memories.

Shirley's astonishment, however, reached its climax at the close of the consultation.

"It's a good deal," he remarked, "for you."

Mark answered with a nod and opened another subject. "I don't suppose Timothy Woodhouse left much."

"Practically nothing."

"How does our case stand?"

"We'll win it."

"You're sure of that?"

"Absolutely. His estate will never push it to trial."

"Then settle it."

Shirley whistled his surprise. "Has the philanthropic bee stung the whole Quinby concern?" he grinned. "I wouldn't do that, though. It would be an admission. As a lawyer, I couldn't advise—"

"I don't ask advice. Settle it."

Shirley waved a concessive hand. "It's your case, of course. For how much? They'll take any figure."

"For whatever you think fair. Not as a lawyer, however. Think of it," Mark smiled wryly, "as a gentleman—if the word means anything to you."

"It's your case," Shirley repeated. "But my notion is, people will think you don't want the publicity—for social reasons. That sort of talk—"

Mark rose abruptly. "I can't help," he replied, with an impatient frown, "what people think, can I? Fix it up as soon as you can."

But the day's adventures were not ended. The ghost of Timothy Woodhouse could not oust Rose Alley from Mark's mind.

The blacks, ordered by telephone, waited him. Swiftly, Mark holding the reins, they were guided across a bridge, along rough-paved, tumble-down streets, into a quarter such as their aristocratic feet had never trod. Grime and decay were everywhere.

It was 15 years since he had seen Rose alley, but he found the way as though he had taken it but yesterday.

He drew up at the mouth of a narrow shallow court, and giving the reins to his man, got down from the trap.

A few children—dirty, sallow, undersized—had been playing in the court. With difficulty, for they had not his tongue and were afraid of the stranger, he learned from them in which tenement Peter Anderson lived.

He groped and stumbled up two flights of stairs that groaned protestingly under his tread. He found a door and knocked. It opened. . . .

For a full minute, speechless, he stared at the woman who stood on the threshold.

CHAPTER XVI.

Glowing Embers.

The figure silhouetted in the doorway was one to make men dream, full curved, strong with the strength of women whose forbears have always toiled, yet without heaviness; it was the strength that lies in quality, not in bulk.

She looked at him steadily, showing no surprise. And by that he read that she had learned to take life, its coincidences and its climaxes as they came, calmly, without loss of poise.

She spoke first, in a low even voice that hinted even less than her manner at inner excitement. "I thought it was Piotr. Your step sounds like his."

They might have been daily familiars.

"Yes," he flushed. "I am somewhat in his case."

He almost missed the swift glance she cast toward his cane. But he was grateful that she had no comment for his injury. In the presence of her splendid perfections his own physical shortcoming seemed almost cause for shame.

"How do you do, Kazia?" he said gravely. "I didn't expect to find you here."

He held out an uncertain hand. She took it, neither hastily nor reluctantly, for a brief meaningless clasp.

"I am here sometimes. Will you come in?"

She stood aside and he entered, trying to overcome his limp. It was the kitchen, which in Rose alley—as he remembered—had to serve as living room as well. It was clean, but bare; pitifully bare.

By the stove stood a little faded woman, much stooped, her hair white and thin, her pale lack-luster eyes for the moment brightened by a startled question. He went over to her and took her hand. She shrank away from him.

"It is Mark Truitt, Matka," said Kazia in Polish. "Don't you remember?"

Hanka said something in the same tongue.

"She says," Kazia interpreted, "they have never forgotten."

Their eyes met again. . . . His turned away quickly and went to the other occupant of the room. He sat in the only armchair, a huge mass of inert flesh, head slouched forward and fingers playing aimlessly with the long unkempt beard that reached half-way to the bulging waist. Mark laid a hand on his shoulder. Roman looked up. But Roman saw as the new-born babe sees.

The grasp on his shoulder tightened. "Roman, don't you know me? I'm Mark—Mark Truitt, you remember."

The shoulder stirred a little under the tight grasp. Roman's head slouched forward again and he began once more his aimless twisting of the long beard.

"How long," Mark's voice had become sharp, "has he been this way?"

"Almost three years."

"And here?"

"A year longer."

Kazia's eyes said: "What is that to you?"

"Why," he demanded, "didn't you let me know about it?"

She smiled—contemptuously, as it seemed to him.

"We must get them out of here," he went on hastily.

"We can't. Piotr won't let us."

"He must," Mark declared curtly.

"He will not," she repeated.

"I saw him today. He's crazy."

"He is. He's a good compositor and could make enough to keep them at least decently. But he prefers to work for the Outcry—for little or nothing. Generally it's nothing. He says it's for the cause."

"But that's no reason why he shouldn't let me help them."

She shrugged her shoulders. "To Piotr it is, I know, because I've tried."

"Then," he said, "we'll take them away and settle with Piotr afterward."

He said it crisply, with the assured air of fortune's darlings who, having made their resolve, take its consummation for granted. Her faint smile showed again.

"It isn't so simple as that. They won't go."

"They won't go!" He stared. "Why not?"

"For one thing," she returned quietly, "the Matka loves her son. I'll ask her."

She turned to Hanka and for several minutes the two women talked earnestly in their native tongue. Hanka shook her head continuously.

"She says," Kazia returned to Mark, "'My Piotr wouldn't like it.'"

Hanka interrupted, laying a hand on Kazia's arm and looking anxiously toward the door. Kazia nodded.

"She says also," she interpreted again, "that we'd better go. It's most time for Piotr to come home. She's right."

"I think," Mark answered, "I'll stay, since I'm here, and have this out with Piotr."

"You'd better not." Her swift glance seemed to measure his physical frailty. "Piotr's temper is uncertain. He found me here once and drove me out. It—" The gloom could not quite hide the color that surged into her cheeks. "It wasn't nice."

"I'm sorry for them, but just the same, since I've started, I'll see this through and wait for Piotr."

"No, you'd better not," she repeated with cold emphasis. "You can prove your inflexibility in some other way. Piotr is apt to have been drinking and if his temper is stirred up, he'll make them suffer." She nodded toward Hanka and Roman. "Really, you're quite helpless in the matter."

"I seem to be." He laughed shortly, to conceal a disappointment as undefined as the emotion set stirring by the sight of his old friends. "But, at least, I can leave some money."

But she shut him off from this, too. "No. What money they can use without Piotr's knowing of it, I can furnish."

He limped stiffly toward the door, more hurt than he was willing to admit to himself by the rebuff and the failure of his impulsive mission.

He went quickly out into the dark passage, that he might not have to look longer, and there awaited her. When she came, he led the way down the rickety stairs and out into the foul smelling court, lighted up now by a swaying arc lamp.

"One would think," he blurted out, "you wanted to stay there."

"Do you find that so wonderful?"

"I'm glad you can't. It's no place for such as you."

"Many people have lived here."

"But not from choice. I know. I lived here once myself, before—" He hesitated a moment. "I left it to live with Roman."

She made no reply. He stopped, facing her and blocking her egress.

"You're thinking my going there was to the advantage of no one but myself?"

"Why else should you have gone there?"

"That's almost cynical, isn't it? I might have had several other reasons—but didn't. At least I did you no harm."

"Neither harm nor good."

"One doesn't like to think of one's self as reduced to even a harmless nonentity. Still, most of the virtues are negative, I believe. Though I'm vain enough to wish I could have been a positive influence in the making of the woman you've become. It's rather remarkable, Kazia."

"It isn't remarkable—or excuse for vanity."

She had not winced, nor had her steady gaze wandered. But for just an instant a fleeting somber shadow had rested in her eyes.

"I must go," she said.

They walked in silence to the mouth of the court. At their approach Mark's man got down from the trap, touching his hat.

"Can't I set you home?" Mark ventured, not at all sure that she would accept. But she affected no reluctance.

She glanced at a little watch she wore. "I go to the Todd hospital, and I've overstayed here a little."

He helped her up to the seat. The horses sprang forward, swung into the car tracks and quickly left the tenement neighborhood behind. For a time Mark gave his attention to guiding their swift course around overtaken cars and the slow lumbering teams that drew the heavy traffic of the street. They were on the bridge before either spoke.

"You said, to the hospital," he began suggestively. "Do you—"

"I'm on a case there."

"You're a nurse, then? I remember you had a knack for that sort of thing. Your husband—er—I hadn't heard—"

"I haven't seen him for 12 years."

"Kazia," he asked gravely, "will you tell me about yourself?"

"There is nothing to tell—any more than there is about you."

"That is, you're not interested in what has happened to me. You're frank."

"Because a chance has thrown us together for an hour is no reason for us to pretend an interest neither of us can feel."

"You may speak for yourself, please. At least, we can oil the wheels of circumstance by going through the polite forms. You could smile very graciously on my man Felix, but to me—" He broke off with a short laugh. "History has a way of repeating itself. I remember saying something of the sort to you once before. Of course, you've forgotten."

"I forget—nothing."

"Ah!" He turned quickly to her again. "Then I did do you harm."

"I can't see—"

"It follows," he interrupted. "If I had done you no harm, you would remember charitably, not coldly or worse, and you would be at least as cordial to me as to my groom."

"Now it is you," she answered after a thoughtful pause, "who will not let me oil the wheels. Probably what you say is right. I haven't thought much about influences—I haven't had time."

"I'm sorry. Which seems all I can do about it. You and Piotr and Hanka seem in a conspiracy to teach me that for regrettable things we can pay only with regret. But I promised to save you time."

Darkness had fallen when they drew up before the hospital. Mark descended painfully to help her down—a rather superfluous courtesy, since she was better able to alight alone than was he. "You're in good time, I hope?"

"Oh, yes. Thank you for the ride."

They exchanged a conventional hand clasp. She moved toward the steps leading to the hospital door. He began to climb back into the trap.

But the restive horses started too soon, while he was balanced on the little mounting step. His foot was dislodged. He would have fallen, perhaps been dragged, had Kazia not sprung forward, and catching the reins, brought the horses sharply to a stop.

"You are hurt?"

"No," he lied through set teeth, as he pulled himself up to the seat. His

"Ah!" He Turned Quickly to Her Again. "Then I Did You No Harm."

hip, in fact, had received an excruciating wrench. "I'm a little awkward. This is one of the things I can't get quite used to."

"I supposed it was only temporary."

He shook his head briefly, as though the topic were distasteful.

"Another—you probably won't believe this—is an existence that continually requires little cruelties of one. Big ones, too, sometimes."

"You say—requires?"

"At least, encourages. But I," he smiled unpleasantly, "am subject to regrets. And equally unprofitable impulses. Of course," with obvious irony, "this is very interesting to you."

She was standing between two balustrade lamps. In their bright glow he saw her cool impersonal regard change, become questioning. And the dark shadow again—as though she had seen and known to the full the cruelties whereof he spoke. Her lips parted. But no words fell. With an odd little gesture of repression she turned and slowly mounted the stairs. At the top she paused for an instant.

"Good night," she repeated. "And thank you again."

He dined alone at his club that night. The events of the day had left him depressed and strangly restless and with a strong distaste for companionship.

CHAPTER XVII.

Fanned into Flame.

"I'd better quit thinking of her," Mark told himself.

A virtuous and a wise resolution, forsooth! And one strangely hard to keep. The thought—of a woman of the people, dwelling in a fine strong body whose splendid perfection the toil of the people could not diminish, whose flame it could not quench—never withdrew entirely, at most retired into ambush whence to spring out upon him at unguarded moments, with ever increasing potency to stir his jaded imagination.

Attainment of the partnership had indeed proved to be the climax of his career with the Quinby company. Followed quickly the long imminent collapse. There was no specific ailment, save a heavy stubborn cough and the constant ache in his injured hip, which were really symptoms. It was rather a general failure of his powers. He was no longer able to whip flagging energies to the day's tasks. The cool, clear, incisive brain that could grasp a multitude of details and yet not lose sight of result and purpose had become cloudy, vacillating and wandering, a poor tool for the direction of a huge, intricately organized plant operating under tremendous pressure. He was subject to attacks of profound melancholy. He could not sleep without the aid of drugs. Worst of all, the will to endure, to mock pain and weakness, had broken.

"What's the matter with me?" he demanded of his physician.

"Burnt out," was the succinct reply.

"What can I do?"

"Nothing. And quit taking drugs."

"But," habit protested, "I can't do nothing."

"It's your life," interrupted the doctor. "But you've consulted me and I propose to earn the stiff fee I'll charge you. Drop everything, go to the country or to the end of the earth—personally, I'd advise the end of the earth, because it's farthest away and newest to you. Forget work, play a while."

Mark asked and received from the directors a six months' vacation. But, although he formulated no reason, he did not at once leave the city. When the weather permitted he filled in the hours by driving through the parks. They were long tedious hours, as drearily empty as he had forecasted. The nights, when he lay sleepless, fighting an incipient craving, were longer and drearier. Thus it was that he had leisure to think of Kazia Whiting, though at some loss to explain why the reappearance of one whom in his receded youth he had treated badly should command so much of his interest.

Nor did he admit a design when his drives took him almost daily past the Todd hospital. Nevertheless the sight of that institution was enough to evoke a faint thrill of excitement not to be laid to its barrack-like architecture, followed by a more emphatic disappointment as the neighborhood was left behind. One afternoon Kazia, in company with another young woman, emerged from the grounds as he was passing and gave him a cool impersonal nod. He guessed that it was her recreation hour and marked the time. The quick leaping interest should have been a warning to him. Perhaps it was, for:

"I'm making a fool of myself," he growled. "What do I know of this woman?"

On the third day thereafter, at the same hour, he passed the hospital. This time Kazia appeared alone. She gave him again the cool impersonal nod and would have passed on. But he drew the horses up sharply and called: "Kazia!"

She paused, hesitated a moment, then went over to the curb.

"Will you drive with me for a while?"

"I ought to walk," she answered.

"Please, Kazia." It did not seem absurd to him that he pleaded.

She hesitated again, then—

"Yes," she said.

He would have alighted to help her to the seat, but she forestalled him.

"Don't get out." And she was beside him.

He touched the horses with his whip and they sprang forward.

"You aren't well," she said abruptly.

And he, ascribing to that fact her unexpected compliance, was at the moment almost glad of his disability.

"Is it obvious? I believe I'm not. In fact, my doctor has ordered me to get out and play—I find it very hard work. That's why—that's one reason why—I asked you. I needed company. The circumstance," he smiled, "ought to appeal to you professionally."

"Nurses are notoriously hard-hearted."

"Yes? Then I can't work on your sympathies. On the whole, I'd rather have it so. You'll have to admit it took courage to ask you to play with me, because—you'll admit again—you weren't exactly cordial the last time."

"What did you expect?"

"But I expected nothing," he retorted. "I didn't know you would be at Roman's. Why, I hadn't even heard of you for—I've been counting it up—14 years. That isn't gross flattery, is it? But, of course, you aren't the sort of woman that likes flattery. Are you?"

"Then you're not so sure, after all? But I do like it."

"I must remember that." He chuckled. "Playing becomes distinctly easier. Isn't it lucky I happened along by the hospital just when I did?"

"But I thought—" She almost smiled. "I thought it was a habit."

"So you've seen me? Now you mention it, I may as well confess that this isn't luck, but the result of a very clever plot. I've been driving past the hospital almost every day in the sneaking hope that just this would occur."

"You say, a sneaking hope—?"

"You see," he confided, "I'm easily frightened. How could I know that I'd find you so—so beautifully human?—Are you preparing to snub me for that?"

"I am considering it." The smile was unmistakable now. "But I won't, because today is one of the days when I can't help being beautifully human. I'm so healthy that sometimes I just have to take a vacation from myself."

"And I'm so unhealthy that, though I'd like to, I can't give Truitt the slip for even an hour. He's a persistent beggar—as you may have noticed the last few weeks."

They laughed.

It was a clear afternoon, beautiful with the mellow radiance of autumn sunshine. But the wind that swept sky and air clean was crisp and penetrating. To her, superbly healthy it gave only a rare tinge of color that enhanced her charm, gave the last needed softening touch. His wasted body, despite the heavy overcoat he wore, could not resist the chill breath. But, though he knew he would probably pay later for the exposure, he would not by so much as a minute curtail the hour.

"I haven't had so pleasant—it's a puny word, but let that go—so pleasant a time in years," he declared.

"I see," she laughed, "you have taken me at my word."

"But I mean it," he protested. "I'd like you to believe that I mean it."

He became grave.

"Since that day at Roman's I've been thinking a good deal of what we said—about my having harmed you. If regrets—but there's nothing so useless. That sort of thing isn't easily forgiven, is it?"

"Oh, very easily."

"You are thinking that I give too much significance to our little affair. I do not—"

"No, I mean I have never blamed you. Of course, we were too young for it to have any lasting significance. And, if I remember aright, I invited it—and so put you in what must have seemed a very tragic quandary at the time." The most critical ear could have discerned nothing ungenuine in her rippling laugh.

Loses Ends of Fingers in Machine.

The Reporter's Boalsburg correspondent reports that William Stover met with an accident one day last week which resulted in the loss of the ends of several fingers of his right hand. He had risen early to boil applebutter at his home and wanted to make a patent stirrer, drilling the holes on a power machine which he had set up not far from his home to expedite the work on the new J. M. Ross building which he is erecting. While engaged in drilling the holes his mind for a moment was taken off his work and his right hand was caught in the jointer. All the fingers were crushed and he was taken to the Bellefonte hospital where an operation was performed. He is keeping in good spirits and superintending the work on the new building.

She will assist the Misses Geiss in their dressmaking business.

DEATHS.

Michael D. Leitzell died at his home in Spring Mills Tuesday evening at six o'clock, from a complication of diseases, superinduced by pneumonia. He had been in normal health up until Saturday last when an attack of pneumonia was followed by hemorrhages which brought him to life's end rapidly. Funeral services will be held Saturday morning and interment will take place in Heckman's cemetery, Rev. D. M. Geesey, Lutheran minister of Aaronsburg, officiating.

Mr. Leitzell was aged sixty years and spent his entire life in Spring Mills. For a number of years he traveled the road as an agent for fruit sprayers. Surviving him are his wife and three children, namely, Charles and Mrs. Robert Connelly, Spring Mills; Mrs. Domer Emerick, Altoona.

James P. Durst, aged seventy-four years, died in St Luke's hospital at Jacksonville, Florida, Tuesday of last week, from the effects of an enlarged liver and dropsy. Mr. Durst was a resident of Jacksonville for twenty-five years and is survived by one grandson, James P. Durst, Jr.

Mr. Durst was a native of Potter township, and was the son of the late Peter Durst. He served his country during the civil war, and the local Post G. A. R in Jacksonville attended the funeral in a body.

Daniel Braucht died Sunday morning at the home of William Gentzel, west of Coburn, after a week's illness with acute pneumonia, aged seventy years and five months. Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at the Reformed church and interment was made in the Coburn cemetery, Rev. W. Donat of Aaronsburg, officiating Mr. Braucht was never married and is survived by one brother, John Braucht of Coburn, and one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Meese of Spring Mills. He made his home for the past few years with his niece, Mrs. William Gentzel, and prior to this time lived at the home of Samuel Ard at Aaronsburg.

Charles A. Rishel, a young farmer of Penn township, died Tuesday morning of epilepsy, a disease with which he had been afflicted since boyhood. He was aged thirty-two years. Funeral services will be held Friday morning from his late residence and interment will be made in Millheim, Rev. J. M. Price of Spring Mills officiating. Surviving are his wife and four children; also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Catharine Rishel.

Mrs. Catharine Beebler, a Miles township charge, died Friday near her home, two miles northwest of Rebersburg, of old age, being past eighty-one years. Funeral services were held in the Lutheran church at Rebersburg Monday and interment followed in the Union cemetery, Rev. J L. Metzger, officiating. She is survived by three daughters and one son.

Aaronsburg.

Ray Stricker from Huntingdon is home at present.

Mrs. J. P. Coburn is getting ready to spend the winter months with her sister, Mrs. E. Rogers, in Bellefonte.

Dr. C. S. Musser was called to Akron, Ohio, where his nephew, Philip Musser, is very ill.

Boyd Vonada took four people from Spring Mills to Jersey Shore in his auto on Sunday.

Mr. Siegle, the eye specialist from State College, was a caller at the home of O. P. Adams.

Mrs. L. K. Lenker and daughter returned to their home after spending some time with her children.

Mrs. Caroline Geary from Centre Hall is being entertained by Mrs. R. Emma Hess.

Mr. and Mrs. George Corman and five children from Rebersburg were entertained last Sunday at the home of John Heinze.

Rev. Thomas Frederick from Church City was a pleasant caller at the home of his cousin, Mrs. T. C. Weaver, a few hours on Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mensch from Sunbury were very pleasantly entertained by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Mensch.

Mr. and Mrs. James S. Weaver and aged mother went to Brush Valley Tuesday to help make cider for their son Calvin, and also assist in boiling apple butter and picking apples.

Spring Mills.

Paul Leitzell of Chicago visited friends and relatives last week.

Mrs. Krape of State College spent a few days with friends.

T. M. Gramley and family autoed to Clintondale on Saturday.

Renna Wagner spent Sunday at Madisonburg.

Archie Decker and family of Mifflinburg spent Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Chas. Hennich.

Rev. and Mrs. Brown, Daniel Kennelly, Jr., and wife all of Shamokin, spent Monday and Tuesday with relatives.

The sale of the property of the late Mrs. Katharine Shook on Wednesday was attended by a large crowd of people, and everything brought fair prices.

Mrs. A. C. Dunlap and daughters Carrie and Blanche were to Jersey Shore on Sunday to see Mr. Dunlap who is in the hospital. He is improving slowly.

Last week one night, John Horner, who was boiling applebutter, heard a commotion in Ammon Decker's chicken house and decided to investigate. On arriving at Decker's he saw a man run away. Next morning seven nice chickens were missing. There is too much petty thieving going on and some one will get hurt. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

PTOMAIN POISONING.

What the State Commissioner of Health Has to Say Concerning This Common Ailment.

Ptomain poison causes a serious disturbance of the digestive organs due to the products of germ life. Generally speaking ptomains are the result of decomposition of food stuffs. This is caused by bacteria. In the process of their growth a poison is produced which effects a violent disturbance if introduced into the digestive system.

Sausage, decomposed fish, cheese, ice cream, milk, canned meats and vegetables are the food stuffs most commonly responsible for ptomain poisoning. Cooking will not always destroy the ptomain in food stuffs. It kills the bacteria but the poisonous substances will remain.

Unfortunately our sense of taste in the majority of instances does not warn us of the presence of these poisons. This is often due to the common practice of over seasoning our food stuffs and the excessive use of condiments. Also it is the practice of many canners to add preservatives which makes it possible for them to use decomposed meats or vegetables. If foods for canning are properly inspected before their preparation and the decayed portion eliminated, they can be made to keep without the addition of injurious preservatives.

Ptomain poisoning as a rule develops a few hours after eating and progresses rapidly.

In the treatment of ptomain poisoning the first essential is to wash out the stomach and empty the intestinal canal of as much of the decomposed food as possible. These things may be done while awaiting the arrival of the physician.

ROCK ISLAND UNDER FIRE

Railroad Faces Receivership Proceedings.

LOSS OF MILLIONS ALLEGED

Commerce Commission Hears Of Deals In Bonds and Stocks—Directors May Be Sued If Receiver Is Appointed.

New York.—The State Supreme Court issued an order directing the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed to take charge of properties not already pledged and to institute action to recover from the railroads' directors an amount of damages alleged to have been caused the railroad and its crediitors.

Should such receiver be appointed under the order prayed for in the suit, which was brought by Horace L. Brand, the receiver would not only be empowered to sue directors, but would be specifically instructed by the court so to do. The receiver, in addition, would be directed to search out and hold any other assets of the railroad company than those pledged to the Central Trust Company as trustee, and also he would be directed to apply to the Federal District Court for permission to intervene in foreclosure action recently instituted by the Central Trust Company.

No amount of damages is named in Mr. Brand's petition as the amount for which the receiver would be directed to sue.

The complaint sets forth that all except a few shares of the $145,000,000 authorized capital stock of the defendant company was transferred to the New Jersey company, which gave the defendant company $50,000,000 preferred and $90,000,000 common of its own stock. The bulk of this, it is alleged, was paid over to the Illinois Company as the balance of the purchase price of stock purchased from it by the defendant.

The directors named are charged with diverting the earnings of the Illinois company to the payment of dividends upon these shares of stock, the benefits of the dividends being received by themselves and others as shareholders of the New Jersey company and as directors of the defendant company. As a result of such diversion, the plaintiff says, the defendant company could not meet the semi-annual interest payment of $1,427,060 on its bonds which fell due last May.

TRIED TO BURN BABY, CHARGED.

West Virginia Mother Arrested Near Point Pleasant.

Point Pleasant, W. Va.—Charged with setting fire to her own home in an effort to burn her 10-day-old baby, Mrs. Mary Lanier, of Apple Grove, near here, was arrested. It is said Mrs. Lanier and her husband had quarreled and that she tried to murder the baby "for spite." The fire started in the room where the baby lay in its cradle. Men at work on the farm found the cradle in flames, but saved the child.

BANKERS STAND BY RAILROADS

Approve Appeals for Increase of Freight Rates.

NEXT MEETING IN SEATTLE

Spend More Money For Agricultural Improvements and Less For Warships and Coast Defenses.

Richmond, Va.—With the election of officers and their installation the convention of the American Banking Association came to an end here.

The adoption of resolution approving the appeals of the railroads to be allowed to increase their freight rates was the feature of the business session Thursday. Other important matters transacted were the election of officers the appointing of a committee to go to Washington to request the Federal Reserve Board to grant different terms for the admission of savings banks and trust companies as members of the Reserve Banks, and fixing a place of meeting for next year.

The New Officers.

Next year's convention will be held in Seattle, Wash. This will allow the delegates an opportunity to visit the great exposition to be held in San Francisco.

The usual rules of the association were carried out, and William A. Law, first vice-president of the First National Bank, Philadelphia, vice-president of the association, was advanced to the presidency. James K. Lynch, vice-president of the First National Bank, San Francisco and a member of the executive council of the American Bankers' Association, elected vice-president; Fred E. Farnsworth, general secretary; William G. Fitzwilson, assistant secretary; J. W. Hoopes, treasurer, and Thomas D. Patton, general counsel.

Under suspension of the rules the convention adopted the resolutions offered by Oliver J. Sands, president of the American National Bank, of Richmond, calling upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant the rate increases asked by the railroads.

Co-operation was asked of the American bankers to induce the federal government to spend more money for agricultural improvements and less for warships and coast defenses. The request was made by Prof. Cyril G. Hopkins.

AMERICAN WIDOWED BY WAR.

Mrs. Henry Hammond Schott Returns To Yonkers.

New York.—One of the first American brides widowed by the war in Europe reached New York aboard the Mauretania. She is Mrs. Henry Hammond Schott, formerly Miss Hazel M. Brown, of Yonkers. She was married on June 15 last. Her husband, Captain Schott, of the British Army, was killed in the retreat from Mons.

WILSON PRAISED BY TAFT.

"Has Taken the Exact Stand" In War, Ex-President Declares.

Providence, R. I.—Praise for President Wilson for his neutral attitude in the present war was voiced by former President Taft and Andrew Carnegie at a luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce. "President Wilson has taken the exact stand," Mr. Taft said, "and has expressed it with admirable accuracy."

SLIDE CLOSES PANAMA CANAL.

Newly Completed Channel Blocked By Tons Of Earth.

CARDEN DENIES WILSON ATTACK

Sir Lionel Repudiates Mexican Interview.

INCIDENT NOW CLOSED

Sir Edward Grey Says That Statement Made By Former British Minister Did Not Reflect On President's Policy.

Washington, D. C.—Sir Lionel Carden has repudiated the interview ascribed to him upon his sailing from New York recently, in which he was said to have reflected severely upon President Wilson's policy in regard to Mexico.

The repudiation came to the State Department through Ambassador Page, in London, who had inquired of the British Foreign Office as to the authenticity of the interview.

Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, informed Mr. Page that while Sir Lionel had submitted to an interview regarding conditions in Mexico as he left them, he had not reflected in any way upon the policy of President Wilson.

It was intimated at the State Department that this closed the incident.

BRAVES NEW CHAMPIONS.

Defeat Athletics For the Fourth Time, Create New Record.

Boston. — Trojan Johnny Evers smashed out a single in the fifth inning of Tuesday afternoon's baseball game and the impossible had happened. Two Boston runners crossed the plate, cinching the game for the Boston Braves, giving them their fourth straight victory over the Philadelphia Athletics and the baseball championship of the world.

Four straight victories for the Braves over the once peerless, but still wonderful, Mackmen. What a marvelous achievement. Not one fan in every million in this land, great as he may have thought the Braves were, predicted such a thing as has come to pass—the doling out by the Braves to the Athletics of four successive beatings.

NEW AMBASSADOR RECEIVED.

Macchi di Cellere, of Italy, Calls On President Wilson.

Washington, D. C.—Macchi di Cellere, the new Italian ambassador, presented his credentials to President Wilson Tuesday. He was introduced by Secretary Bryan. Short addresses dwelling on the good relations between Italy and the United States were exchanged by the President and the Ambassador.

WAR WOULD FIND U. S. UNPREPARED

So Asserts Gardiner, Who Asks for an Inquiry.

CAUSES SENSATION IN HOUSE

Declares "All Carnegie's Millions Cannot Silence Those Of Us Who Believe Bullets Cannot Be Stopped By Bombast."

Washington, D. C.—Inquiry into the preparedness of the United States for war, "offensive or defensive," by a national security commission was proposed in a joint resolution introduced in the House by Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, who recently returned from the war zone in Europe.

"I have introduced this resolution to investigate the military status of the United States," said Mr. Gardner, in a statement accompanying the resolution, "because I know that a public search will open the eyes of Americans to a situation which is being concealed from them. The United States is totally unprepared for a war, defensive or offensive, against a real power. In my opinion, the effect of the vast sums of money spent by Carnegie in his peace propaganda has been to blind Americans to the fact that our national security from a military point of view is undermined.

"Nearly every army and navy officer to whom I have spoken tells me the same story of inadequate security. I have yet to speak to a single member of either the Committee on Naval Affairs or the Committee on Military Affairs of the House of Representatives, in whose judgment I have confidence, who does not in private make exactly the same admission. Yet, all these gentlemen seem to consider it their duty to refrain from any public statement."

Mr. Gardner, referring to the prosperity and peace of the United States and to the "wonderful South American Continent which we have closed to European colonization by the Monroe Doctrine," declared that he could not understand "how any intelligent student of history can fail to see that we are impotent to defend ourselves to inforce the Monroe Doctrine by moral suasion and financial might alone."

"The time has not yet come," he asserted, "when the United States can afford to allow the martial spirit of her sons to be destroyed, and all the Carnegie millions in the world will not silence those of us who believe that bullets cannot be stopped with bombast nor powder vanquished by platitudes."

Mr. Gardner further declared in his statement that in respect to the present European war, concerning which he had some personal insight, having been in the zone of conflict his views were "not those of a neutral."

The Gardner resolution proposes a commission to consist of three senators and three members of the House and three persons to be named by the President of the United States to make full investigation into the question of the preparedness of the United States for war.

GOLD AND SILVER.

Production In the United States During 1913.

Washington, D. C.—Gold production in the United States in 1913 amounted to 4,299,784 fine ounces, valued at $88,884,400, according to statistics compiled by the Geological Survey and the Mint Bureau. The silver production amounted to 66,801,500 fine ounces, valued at $40,348,100. The gold production was $4,500,000 less than in 1912 and silver nearly 3,500,000 ounces less for the same period. California was first in gold production, with 979,174 ounces; Colorado second, with 876,057 ounces, and Alaska third, with 735,364 ounces. Nevada led in silver production, with 15,657,400 ounces; Montana was second, with 12,500,000 ounces, and Utah third, with 11,282,300 ounces.

Washington, D. C.—A radiogram to the Revenue Cutter Service from the commander of the Behring Sea fleet reported the drowning of Assistant Surgeon L. W. Jenkins, P. H. S., and five other men when a boat from the cutter Manning swamped Saturday in Unalaga Pass, off Cape Sariches.

Two French engineers have invented grappling apparatus which in tests has successfully raised sunken submarines.

A NURSE TAKES DOCTOR'S ADVICE

And is Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Euphemia, Ohio.—"Because of total ignorance of how to care for myself when verging into womanhood, and from taking cold when going to school, I suffered from a displacement, and each month I had severe pains and nausea which always meant a lay-off from work for two to four days from the time I was 16 years old.

"I went to Kansas to live with my sister and while there a doctor told me of the Pinkham remedies but I did not use them then as my faith in patent medicines was limited. After my sister died I came home to Ohio to live and that has been my home for the last 18 years.

"The Change of Life came when I was 47 years old and about this time I saw my physical condition plainly described in one of your advertisements. Then I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot tell you or any one the relief it gave me in the first three months. It put me right where I need not lay off every month and during the last 18 years I have not paid out two dollars to a doctor, and have been blest with excellent health for a woman of my age and I can thank Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it.

"Since the Change of Life is over I have been a maternity nurse and being wholly self-supporting I cannot over estimate the value of good health. I have now earned a comfortable little home just by sewing and nursing. I have recommended the Compound to many with good results, as it is excellent to take before and after childbirth."—Miss EVELYN ADELIA STEWART, Euphemia, Ohio.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"Don't be afraid, madam," replied the waggish collector. "Our company got you in this hole, and we're bound to see you through."

ERUPTION ON BABY'S FACE

Duke, N. C.—"When my baby was two weeks old, behind his ears turned red and caused an irritation and from rubbing it became raw and stayed moistened all the time. At times it would get so bad as to bleed. He was fretful. At the time he was eight months old he was in a bad condition with sores behind his ears and on his face.

"Nothing seemed to do any good at all till I got Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I at once commenced to wash his ears and face three or four times during the day with the Cuticura Soap, dried them with a soft cloth, then applied the Cuticura Ointment. In ten days his ears and face were well and no scars were left." (Signed) Mrs. Lena Lee, Jan. 2, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

Anecdotes.

Speaking of humorists brings us to the fact that no man living can look quite so solemn when producing humor as Irvin S. Cobb, the well known comedian to the Saturday Evening Post. When Cobb was on the staff of one of the big New York newspapers he did various news assignments, some of them mighty serious and others that gave him a chance for comedy. It was a standing joke about the office that anybody could look at Cobb as he bent over his typewriter and tell which kind of yarn he was writing. If his face was all wrinkled up with solemnity like a bloodhound's, with a sad look about the eyes such as one rarely sees except in an undertaker's hostler, Cobb was preparing something that would make hosts of people laugh.

WHITE GRUBS IN 1915

Among the Most Serious Pests to Farm Crops.

Conservative Estimate of Damage to Corn, Timothy and Potatoes Placed at Over $7,000,000 in Three Infested States.

(By J. DAVIS.)

The common white grubs or grubworms, as they are often called, have for years been recognized as among the most serious pests to farm crops, notably corn and timothy, while strawberries, potatoes and nursery plantings have all been frequently and seriously affected. Probably the most serious outbreak of white grubs occured in 1912, following an abundance of beetles in 1911. In the worst infested districts it was not unusual to find from 40 to 60 grubs in a single hill of corn. Indeed, in a corn field in Iowa, devoted to timothy in 1911, the writer found 77 grubs in an area 2½ feet square and five inches deep. This really represented less than a single hill of corn, for the hills in this field were 3¼ feet apart. From a personal survey of the infested territory made in 1912 in three states, as well as from reports of farmers and others, we have a very conservative estimate of the damage to corn, timothy and potatoes in these states aggregating not less than $7,000,000. Available records show that May beetles were numerous in 1914, hence we may be reasonably certain that in 1915 the grubs will again be destructive and exceedingly abundant, unless their numbers are materially reduced by natural enemies, by artificial means, or by adverse climatic conditions.

White Grub Working in Potato.

White grubs and May beetles are preyed upon by numerous birds, mammals and insects, all of which are useful in reducing their numbers. The most important of these enemies are the birds, especially crows and crow blackbirds. Domestic fowls may properly be classed as natural enemies of white grubs. All farm poultry are fond of these insects, and where possible should be given the run of infested fields at plowing time. Turkeys are especially valuable in this capacity. Among the mammals which feed on the grubs the skunk is most valuable, and, indeed, some farmers attribute the increase in these insects to the decrease in numbers of skunks, which are being killed off by trappers.

An infested field may be cleared of grubs by pasturing it with hogs, which are fond of the insects and will root to a depth of a foot or more in search of them.

Where is is impracticable to pasture hogs in an infested field much good can be accomplished by fall plowing. The plowing should be done late, but should not be delayed until the ground becomes chilly and frosty, for then the grubs will have gone down beyond the reach of the plow.

Since the beetles usually deposit their eggs in fields of grass, timothy and small grains, the crops planted in these fields the year following a season of beetle abundance should be those which are least susceptible to grub injury, such as buckwheat, clover, alfalfa and peas. Care should always be exercised in the selection of a crop to follow sod or old timothy ground. Where hogs can be pastured on the land the fall or spring previous to planting, the grubs will be practically eliminated.

Maintaining Regularity.

Poultry stock in the hands of professionals is expected to begin laying about the same time every year. It is expected to lay about so many eggs and about so many eggs are estimated to be fertile and so many to hatch, and about so many will live. These people seldom miss it very far. This regularity is maintained by the constant infusion of vigorous new blood.

Dogs Drive Sheep Raising Out.

A survey made by the United States department of agriculture indicates that if there were a proper control of dogs the number of sheep on the farms could be doubled without displacing other stock. The sheep would fit in a niche of their own. Dogs have driven many farmers out of the sheep business.

OIL MEAL IS A GOOD FEED

Product of Linseed-Oil Mills Can Be Used in Cattle Feeding With Excellent Results.

(By S. C. PLUMB.)

Oil meal can be used in cattle feeding with excellent results. It is a product of the linseed-oil mills, being the residue of ground flaxseed, from which the oil has been mostly removed.

This is at first taken from compressors in the mill in the shape of cakes about two by one feet and three-fourths of an inch or so thick.

One may buy the oil cake or get it in broken pieces, of which the mills sell several sizes, as, for example, nut or pea size, or else ground fine. Where purchased in cake or broken in small pieces adulteration is not usually possible.

When sold as meal it is sometimes adulterated with cheaper feeding stuff.

The oil cake or meal is very pleasant to taste, is exceedingly rich in protein and is highly relished by all animals on the farm. This is a very common feed and any elevator man or grain dealer should be able to supply it in large or small quantities.

Oil meal is not usually fed excepting as a part of the grain ration, and it meets with much favor with those who have used it. Unquestionably two or four pounds a day fed to steers, with corn and oats, would give good results, for oil meal supplies much valuable protein, and not only that but this food puts a finish and quality to skin and hair that almost nothing else will.

The writer has found many successful steer raisers using it on a liberal scale, and when the cost is not too great profit is sure to follow its use with good feeders. Where the cost is not much outside a cent a pound its use is to be advocated.

HANDY BAG-FILLING DEVICE

By Means of Arrangement Illustrated One Man Can Perform Work of Man and a Boy.

A handy device for filling bags can be made by following the plan given herewith:

Set up three posts as shown in picture. The apex should be about six feet from the ground. Screw into each part a stout hook at the height that will let the bag rest lightly on the ground, when filled. If they are too high, the bag will tear out. By means of this arrangement, one man can do the work of one man and a boy. It can easily be moved from one place to another, as the posts can be made of 2 by 4-inch pine material, light enough for a man to carry easily.

FEED FOR FATTENING SWINE

Largest Daily Gains in Nebraska Experiment Were Made on Corn and Cut Alfalfa Hay.

In Nebraska last winter an experiment in feeding alfalfa as a substitute for corn in feeding pigs showed that the largest daily gains were made on three-fourths corn and one-fourth shorts, but a gain practically equivalent was made at a lower cost where either cut or ground alfalfa was substituted for shorts in the ration. The cheapest gains were made on corn and cut alfalfa.

Bran does not prove equal to either shorts or alfalfa when fed as one-quarter of the ration to pigs.

A ration three-fourths corn and one-fourth alfalfa produces greater gains than when one-half is fed.

Where alfalfa is raise on the farm, and when there is no particular need to hasten growth in pigs a ration one-half alfalfa hay and one-half corn may give cheaper gains than when a heavier corn ration is fed.

Hogs which have been raised largely on alfalfa pasture will learn to eat hay in winter without cutting with a machine and to depend largely upon it where only a limited grain ration is fed, but a ration wholly alfalfa does not seem to give economical results.

This experiment shows that cut or ground alfalfa can be substituted for shorts at the same price in fattening pigs.

Secret in Laying Tile.

The great secret in making underdraining a permanent improvement is in securing uniform form in laying the tile, and maintaining a good outlet. As a rule, the safest plan is to look the ground over carefully and then plan out the ditches to the best advantage.

Make the Hens Scratch.

Hens in confinement must certainly be made to scratch. A failure to enforce this rule will prove disastrous to the health of your birds as well as the eggs.

NOVEL IDEA IN WILL MAKING

French Farmer Had Little Money to Leave, but at Least He Could Show His Good Will.

Two New York business men were one day discussing the purchase by one of them of a certain mercantile concern with which, the buyer explained, had come the "good will."

"I hope this 'good will,'" said the friend, "is greater than that of the old French farmer."

"I never heard the story."

"Here it is: The farmer was dying, and he sent for the notary to make out the will. Propped up in bed, he dictated:

"'To Jean Marcel, our superb coiffeur, 10,000 francs.

"'I bequeath 15,000 francs to the fearless Alphonse Bayard, that he may continue his valuable aeronautical experiments.

"'To Pierre Deschamps, chemist, 10,000 francs as a mark of affection.

"'To my physician, Monsieur Leclair, 15,000 francs.

"'To our eloquent pastor, 25,000 francs, to continue the restoration of—'

"'But, my dear sir,' interrupted the notary, 'I don't believe you have all that money to leave.'

"'I know very well I haven't,' said the farmer, calmly, 'but I want to show them my good will.'"—Youth's Companion.

Buzzard Carries Off Dog.

Eagles are said to be game enough and strong enough to carry off almost anything from a man to a cat, but the first instance known when a buzzard carried off a dog was witnessed on a recent afternoon. The incident happened a few miles from Bessemer.

A very brave litle fox terrier was endeavoring to chase off a large buzzard that had alighted on the ground. He only succeeded in making the buzzard fly close to the ground for a short distance. The buzzard stopped on a short stump and waited for the dog, which came barking around the root of the stump.

The buzzard, seeing his chance, jumped from the stump, seized the dog in its mouth and claws, and flew to a thicket near by.—Birmingham (Ala.) Dispatch to the Atlanta Journal.

FOUND OUT.

A Trained Nurse Discovered Its Effect.

No one is in better position to know the value of food and drink than a trained nurse.

Speaking of coffee, a nurse in Pa., writes: "I used to drink strong coffee myself, and suffered greatly from headaches and indigestion.

"While on a visit to my brothers I had a good chance to try Postum, for they drank it altogether in place of coffee. After using Postum two weeks I found I was much benefited and finally my headaches disappeared and also the indigestion.

"Naturally I have since used Postum among my patients, and have noticed a marked benefit where coffee has been left off and Postum used.

"I observe a curious fact about Postum when used by mothers. It greatly helps the flow of milk in cases where coffee is inclined to dry it up, and where tea causes nervousness.

"I find trouble in getting servants to make Postum properly. But when it is prepared according to directions on package and served hot with cream, it is certainly a delicious beverage."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled. 15c and 20c packages.

Instant Postum—is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, made a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

The cost per cup of both kinds is about the same.

The Cause Laid Bare

Tea and coffee drinkers often notice backache, headache, rheumatic pain, dizziness, drowsy, tired feelings, disturbed urination and other signs of kidney weakness. The constant use of narcotic or alcoholic drinks is very apt to irritate the kidneys, and weak kidneys need prompt help to avert all danger of dropsy, gravel or fatal Bright's disease. Avoid the use of stimulants, drink more water, get more rest, fresh air and exercise. To tone and strengthen the tired kidneys, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the most successful and highly recommended kidney remedy.

A Maryland Case

Mrs. E. Harmon, New York Hill, Brunswick, Md., says: "My kidneys were in such bad shape I was ordered to the hospital. There was sediment in the secretions and the passages were distressing. I got so dizzy at times someone had to help me about. My back pained me terribly and I was unable to eat anything except the white of an egg. Doctors failed and finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills. They made me well and I have had no trouble since."

An Appeal

to the People of Pennsylvania

It is in the interest of the public—whose chief concern is good service and safety—that the Extra Crew Law now on the Statute books of Pennsylvania and other States be repealed. This law causes a waste of $1,100,000 annually in the employment of unnecessary men on the Pennsylvania System alone.

No one is more concerned than the Pennsylvania Railroad Company in securing maximum safety on its lines. Every train on this railroad has a full crew, and this extra expenditure adds nothing to safety or public convenience. The same money had much better be spent to remove grade crossings, improve tracks, signals, and bridges, and buy steel cars. This extra crew law, which compels unnecessary expenditures, is one of the factors which menaces the ability of this Company to pay present rates of wages to that great body of employes whose activities are needed.

The Public Service Commission should see to it that all trains are properly manned. Such action would amply protect employes and the public. We appeal to the people in their own interest, we appeal to our employes in their best interest, to ask their representatives in the next Pennsylvania Legislature to repeal the Extra Crew Law.

ANNOUNCEMENT

C. W. Swartz, at Tusseyville, Will Quit Mercantile Business--Big Bargains to be Offered in All Lines.

SALE NOW GOING ON; A TIME TO SAVE MONEY

Opening Day of Sale was Sat., October 17th—Note the correction

I hereby announce that on account of my health I deem it advisable to quit the mercantile business.

Before I can step out I have a large stock of merchandise to dispose of. I haven't tried to find a buyer for the entire stock—I will first offer it to the public. My set time limit to dispose of it is this Winter and next Spring, unless I can dispose of it in less time.

This is a rare opportunity—I say rare because I am giving you a chance to buy a big lot of seasonable goods at about cost and under cost prices. I had laid in a big stock of winter goods before I decided to quit so that many of these goods are new.

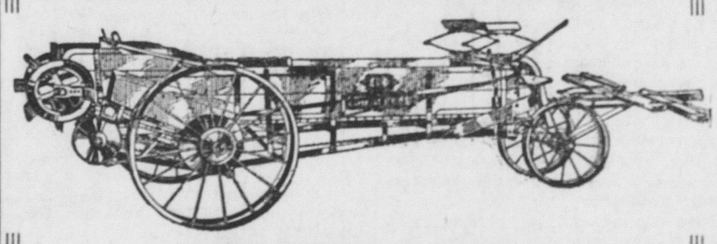
Prices on everything will be reduced. It would take too much space and time to quote prices here so I would say, come to my store and get prices and the goods. If you come for something and don't see it, ask for it; I may have it. I have many goods you don't see.

I expect to keep the grocery stock filled in and will give you special prices right along.

If your neighbors don't get the Reporter do them a kindness by telling them about it.

Yours for business,
C. W. SWARTZ,
Tusseyville, Pa.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER MACHINES



SOME POSITIVE FACTS

If in need of a manure spreader you cannot buy a better spreader than the LOW SPREAD SPREADER, and in fact, you cannot afford to buy any other. It is noted for its durability and reliability.

It is an all steel spreader, and being low down makes it easy to load. Wide wheels, which give better traction, and fitted with best lugs known. The position of the rear axle carries a sufficient portion of the weight, thus enabling good work, regardless of the condition of the soil.

This spreader can be had with or without the wide spread attachment. When the wide spread attachment is used it will spread a width of eight or nine feet.

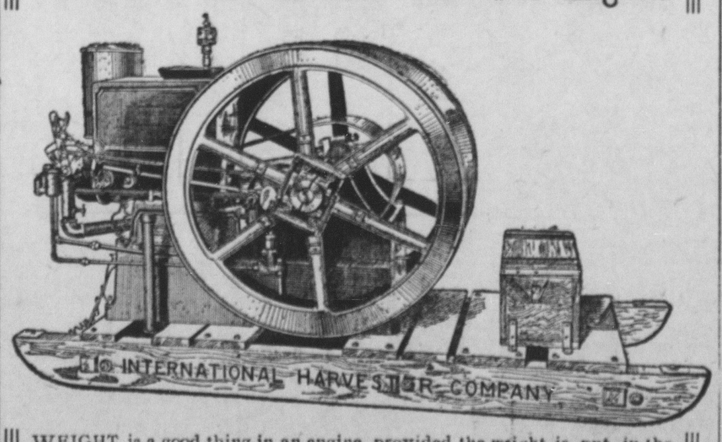
BLUEBELL CREAM SEPARATOR, best from many viewpoints

IN the BLUEBELL cream separator you will find the latest practical ideas in cream separator building. Every improvment in this machine has been carefully worked out and thoroughly tested. Every part of this machine, from the frame down to the smallest screw, is manufacturerd in one factory, under the supervision of one thoroughly competent man. There is a big advan age to you in this fact, because it means that every little detail of this machine will take care of its part of the work when you are separati ng your milk.

Again, the BLUEBELL separator is sold by a company which cannot afford to market inferior goods. The reputation of the company alone ought to be sufficient guarantee that the BLUEBELL cream separator is wor h considering before you buy.

Features of International Harvester Engines



WEIGHT is a good thing in an engine, provided the weight is put in the right places. In the I H C engine the extra weight goes into the fly-wheels to store up power; into the cylinder walls, making it possible to regrind the cylinder six or eight times; into the valves to prevent warping, etc. These are the parts where weight counts.

Study I H C fly-wheel split hubs. A split hub in a fly-wheel is no better than a solid hub until something occurs which requires the removal of a fly wheel. Then the split hub is needed.

This one feature, which costs practically nothing when you buy an I H C engine, may save you a heavy repair bill in the future.

Come in and let us show you the other strong points of I H C engines. There are enough of them to keep you interested for a half day or more.

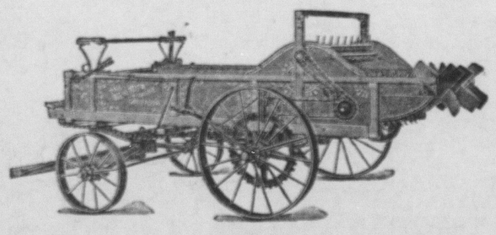
(Shows Simple Method of Cleaning Discs

The BEATRICE is the typical modern separator supplied with a centrifugal washing device to clean the bowl in two minutes. (See illustration above). A separator, no matter what kind, requires washing twice a day. The BEATRICE, with its patent device makes washing the easiest thing imaginable and means much time saved on the farm in this one kind of duty work. Come in and see the beauty of construction in this machine; how silently it runs and why it gets every drop of cream out of your milk.

The New Idea Manure Spreader

We received a short time ago a carload of these famous spreaders. The New Idea is more than a spreader, it is a pulverizer, putting the manure in best shape for distributing on the ground. It is simple and easy running, strongly built, and should have a place on every farm.



Woven Wire Fencing--Carload of all kinds

We have the wide and narrow woven wire fence, all of the best makes, also plenty of barbed and smooth wire.

Must Suit You

Satisfaction Guaranteed—no catches nor technicalities in our guarantee. Your engine must satisfy you or you don't keep it. "Your good will means our success." That's the principal that built our business.

LAUSON FROST KING
Gasoline Engines

have the new Lauson Gear-Driven Magneto, which eliminates all batteries. Built into the engine—won't wear out. Throws a big, hot spark that never weakens. Starts Easily.—The Frost King starts on the magneto without turning over. Requires no cranking. Positively frost proof. Low fuel consumption—high efficiency. Case-hardened and ground wearing parts practically eliminates wear and breakage. We're back of this engine with our own reputation; we wouldn't handle it if there were anything questionable about it. If we can trust it—you can trust us. Drop in and see how easily it starts and how smoothly it runs. Catalog Free.
